CAMPUS RESOURCES TO KEEP YOURSELF SAFE & STRONG

This project was inspired by filmmaker and activist Tani Ikeda’s #survivorloveletter movement, which welcomes letters of self love and honor to survivors of sexual assault. To Tani - thank you for showing us survivors we are not alone and we are worthy of all of the love in the world.

WORDS OF COURAGE & RESILIENCE

a zine created FOR SURVIVORS by a survivor

I see your pain but I also see your resilience. This zine has been created to provide survivors of UCR with messages of empowerment, self-care, healing, and support. We hope the distribution of this zine will contribute towards a cultural shift that moves beyond surviving towards a place of healing, thriving, self-love, and acceptance.

Dedicated to a community of powerful, resilient, courageous souls who find themselves healing or in need of healing; may you continue to be strong, powerful, and capable.

I am with you always. You are stronger than you can even fathom. So even in the darkest moments, just know that there will be a light that emanates from deep within your heart, and that light is called compassion.

You are a super-hero and I am proud to know you.

TANI IKEDA, #survivorloveletter

SURVIVOR,

So, don’t be afraid to embrace the Inner war cry, howling free from the belly of your diaphragm. Remember the power of the wind lying dormant under your tongue and SPEAK.

You almost forgot who you were, Shout against the silence to the tune of insanity.

You are the answer you’ve been waiting for,
You are tidal waves of wisdom crashing wildly against the shore

You are worth more and this life is a gift worth living so give it justice.

Speak freely to your truth, open your mouth wide, heart held high like lion and Roar.

from NOTE TO SELF

from DEAR YOU

I know you have survived so much. Thank you for being here, the world would not be the same without you in it.

#survivorloveletter

I know I don’t say this enough; I love you. I’m here for you, you are enough.
